

To the University Community:

Given a recent sharp increase in student COVID-19 positivity rates and the increasing prevalence across Connecticut and the nation, the University of Connecticut, in consultation with student affairs, academic, administrative, and Board leadership has decided as a safety precaution to delay the student residential move-in by two weeks.

Classes will still begin on Jan. 18; however, the first two weeks of classes will now be conducted online from Jan. 18 to Jan. 29. The new residential student move-in date will be the weekend of Jan. 29.

This is subject to further change based on the course of the pandemic. Also, in the next few days, the University will be issuing a requirement that eligible students receive booster vaccinations. Discussions are also occurring regarding requiring the same for eligible faculty and staff.

Information on changes affecting STUDENTS for the Spring 2022 semester can be found here.

Information on changes affecting FACULTY and STAFF for the Spring 2022 semester can be found here.

In January, University leadership will conduct online town hall meetings for students and faculty/staff to help answer any questions regarding these changes. We will provide more details on those town hall meetings in the near future.

Be safe and enjoy the holiday season.

Warm regards,

Andy

ANDREW AGWUNOBI, MD, MBA

INTERIM PRESIDENT | UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER | UCONN HEALTH

PRESIDENT@UCONN.EDU

Twitter: @UConnPresident

Instagram: @UConnPres